RUSSIA'S ENTRY INTO LEAGUE

WANT LEAD FROM BRITAIN

INDICATION OF WELCOME

NOT ACCEPTING INFERIORITY

London, April 14.

The Soviet is very seriously considering her position vis-a-vis the League of Nations with a view to membership.

Reuter understands that the notion of Russia's entry into the League has not yet entered the mind of discussing the practical conditions of such a step, while the Soviet leaders are generally favourably disposed.

It is obvious, however, that the Soviet will not consider any proposals that would place her in a position of inferiority.

It is understood that the Soviet feels that if Britain and France make it plain that the Soviet would be welcome at Geneva, then the minor difficulties, such as the discrimination of Switzerland and other small countries on the Council to recognise the Soviet, would easily be overcome.—Reuter.

LATEST BERLIN DECREE

(Special to "Telegraph")

Berlin, April 13.

Fortune-telling by cards or by horoscopes is to be forbidden in Berlin as from May 1.

A decree to this effect was issued by the Police President to-day. It will result in the closing of many establishments in the city which have done a flourishing business in the past by drawing the horoscopes of credulous people for payment.—Reuter's Special Service.

London, April 13.

Signor Suvich, Under-Secretary of State at the Italian Ministry of Foreign Affairs, will arrive in London on a courtesy visit on April 22 and is expected to stay until the morning of the 26th.

He will be the guest of the Foreign Secretary, Sir John Simon, at a dinner at the Foreign Office on April 23. He has been invited to dine at the Middle Temple on the following day and a reception will be given in his honour at the Italian Embassy on the evening of the 25th.—British Wireless.

Students Clash With New York Police

New York, Apr. 13.

An anti-war strike called by the Student League of Industrial Democracy, the National Students League and other organisations, resulted in clashes between pacifist students, non-pacifist students and police.

The police responded with fire hoses to the students' fire of over-ripe eggs and tomatoes.—Reuter.

ROOSEVELT GIVEN SURPRISE

DEMOCRATS PARADE IN HONOUR

Washington, Apr. 13.

President Roosevelt's return to the capital from his brief fishing trip was made the occasion for a remarkable demonstration.

Two hundred members of Congress, mostly consisting of Democrats, marched to the station to welcome the President in column of fours, headed by a scarlet-coated Band of Marines.

Workers hurrying to their offices were astonished as demonstrations of this nature are unusual in the capital except on national occasions such as the inauguration of a new President.

STRIKE PROBLEM

Meanwhile, strikes and threats of strikes are reported from many different parts of the country.

Three thousand tool and die workers are idle in Detroit.

Workers affiliated to the American Federation of Labour and employed by the Fisher Body plant at Flint, Michigan, have three times voted in favour of a strike, but have not yet come out. They claim that the employers have not fulfilled their promises to reinstate discharged workers.

OIL WORKERS' THREAT

Mr. Harvey Fleming, President of the International Oil-Field, Gas-Well and Refinery Workers of America, declared to-day that a strike affecting one hundred thousand workers will be called within forty-eight hours if the wage differentials prepared by the Oil Code Authority are adopted.—Reuter.

DR. KUNG & PROFESSOR ROGERS

Silver Discussions In Shanghai

(Special to "Telegraph")

Shanghai, April 14.

Dr. H. H. Kung, the Finance Minister, who accompanied Professor Rogers, the American silver expert, to Shanghai from Nanking yesterday, had a meeting with Mr. T. V. Soong in connection with the proposed organisation of a financial company through which foreign financial assistance in the economic development of China could be efficiently handled.

Speculation is rife concerning whether Dr. Rogers would have any connection with this project.

Dr. H. H. Kung invited Chinese financial leaders to a conference held yesterday afternoon at his Shanghai office, at which they had an exchange of views with Mr. Rogers on the silver issue.—Central News.

FRENCH CABINET WARNS CIVIL SERVANTS

PARIS FEARING DISORDERS

DEMONSTRATION THREATS

SALARY CUTS PROTEST

Paris, April 13.

Apprehensions of disorders arising from the strong feeling aroused by the Doumergue economy scheme are widely shared.

The Government will not tolerate any demonstration that is calculated to disturb public order, states an official communique issued after a Cabinet meeting this morning, called specially in reference to the proposed civil servants' demonstration, arranged for to-morrow.

The communique adds that the decree relating to the cuts in ex-Servicemen's pensions will operate from April 1.

DEMANDS REFUSED

The Government has thus refused the ex-Servicemen's demands that a three per cent. cut should operate from June 1.

M. Doumergue explained that such a concession would upset the whole recovery scheme.

Measures have already been taken to deal with the ringleaders responsible for the partial strikes which have occurred.

TO-MORROW'S "PROMISE"

Sunday is being waited with much anxiety. The civil servants are planning public demonstrations in the streets of every city in France, and on a monster scale in Paris itself.

On Monday, they plan to further demonstrate in the places of their employment.—Reuter.

RODEO BAN IN BRITAIN

STRONG FEELING IN PARLIAMENT

UNANIMOUS VOTE ON NEW BILL

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Message Ordinance, 1911. Received April 14, 9.15 a.m.)

London, Apr. 13.

Britain will not tolerate rodeo displays that resemble Spanish bull-fights, declared a speaker in the House of Commons this afternoon, during the discussion on a Bill placing severe restrictions on the rodeo type of entertainment.

The attitude of the House was reflected in the fact that the second reading of the Bill, which was submitted by a private member and which definitely prohibits certain rodeo contests, was approved unanimously because a rodeo has been arranged to take place in London in June.

The sponsors of the Bill hope that it will become law in time to prevent certain proposed features of the June display.

Members on all sides of the House stigmatised the repulsive cruelty of many rodeo displays, and the Government has promised to give the Bill sympathetic consideration. Whether it secures a third reading depends entirely upon Government decision to grant facilities.—Reuter's Special Service.

SEES CUNARDER AND TALKS WITH MEN

London, Apr. 13.

The Prince of Wales, who is fulfilling several engagements in Scotland, visited Glasgow to-day and attended a Boy Scout exhibition this evening.

FALLING DUTCH TRADE

NEGOTIATIONS IN LONDON

London, April 13.

Preliminary discussions regarding the scope of the forthcoming trade negotiations between Britain and the Netherlands will take place on the arrival in London, on April 24, of Dr. Hirschfeld, Director-General of Economic Affairs for the Netherlands Government.

The large dimensions of the trade which is carried on between the United Kingdom and the Netherlands invests the coming negotiations with much importance.

Last year, British exports to the Netherlands represented a value of £12,480,000 and Britain's re-exports to the Netherlands were £1,975,000, while imports into the United Kingdom from the Netherlands, totalled £18,859,000. Britain's visible adverse balance with Holland amounting to £4,404,000.

In the previous year, when imports from the Netherlands totalled £22,030,000, the adverse balance was £7,539,000 and in 1931, when British imports from the Netherlands reached a value of £35,000,000, the visible balance of trade was in favour of the Netherlands to the extent of £18,301,000.

THE GREAT FLOOD CONFIRMED

EXCAVATIONS AT UR END

STORY OF 4,000 YEARS AGO

London, Apr. 13.

Commenting on the fact that after twelve seasons of careful and scientific exploration, the joint expedition of the British Museum and the University of Pennsylvania have completed their labours at Ur of the Chaldees, the Times says their work has marked an epoch in Archaeology.

For the first time, two distinct scientific institutions of two countries have co-operated—and their successive campaigns represent the longest continuous examination of a site that has yet been undertaken.

Their excavations have carried back the record to the first human occupation of the Euphrates Valley when Ur was a hamlet in a marsh, and their discoveries have illustrated, with an astonishing wealth of detail, periods formerly known in the barest outline.

Abundant light has been thrown on the domestic life of the people of Ur twenty centuries before the Christian era.

Of even greater importance has been the unmistakable confirmation of the Biblical tradition that a flood of gigantic dimensions—which left seven feet of silt at one point near Ur—once overwhelmed the lowlands of Iraq and destroyed its settlements.—British Wireless.

BURGLAR SCARE AT SHEK-O

ROBBERY AT SIR WM. SHENTON'S

Residences at Shek-O have during the past two nights been visited by a burglar, who last night managed to get away with a sum of $15 from the Hon. Sir William Shenton's house.

On Wednesday night, the burglar paid visits to Sir William Shenton's and Mr. M. H. Turner's residences, but took nothing. Last night, he returned to the former's house, gained entrance to Miss Shenton's room, seized a suitcase and turned out its contents, leaving everything behind excepting $16 in money.

An attempt was also made to enter the residence of Mr. T. P. Kemble, but the barking of three dogs belonging to the occupant scared the intruder away.

While working at the Kowloon Dock yesterday, a labourer, Poon Pau, aged 32, fell from a plank, a height of ten feet to the bottom of the dock.

NEW EPOCH IN INDUSTRY

EMPIRE CO-ORDINATION SOUGHT

WIDE POWER FOR FEDERATION

London, Apr. 14.

The biggest attempt at industrial reorganisation yet launched in Great Britain is contained in the draft Five Year Plan for the reorganisation of the iron and steel industry.

The plan will give the British Iron and Steel Federation complete control of the industry throughout the Empire.

It is understood that the scheme has the Treasury's approval and it is, therefore, anticipated that the present duty of 33 1/3rd per cent. on imported iron and steel, due to expire in October and imposed on condition that the industry reorganise itself, will be continued.

VOLUNTARY SCHEME

The scheme is voluntary and free from State control.

It empowers the Federation to control imports by quota in order to make the industry independent of tariffs within five years.

It seeks to recover lost world markets by means of an export levy on home sales, and by reorganising production by eliminating wasteful competition, encouraging amalgamations and the modernisation of plant, and by securing the coordination of every iron and steel enterprise in the Empire.—Reuter.

London, Apr. 13.

Colombo was, of course, easily the outstanding two-year-old of last season and his value is already placed at over £30,000.

The call-over revealed the following betting odds:

Mr. Morgenthau has called in an additional $1,200,000,000 Fourth Liberty Bonds for redemption on October 15. The decision to make the call was approved by the Cabinet this afternoon.—Reuter.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

Here's Streamline Chic for Spring!

New Form-Fitting Coats Flare
At Knees—Buttons Emphasized

By Joan Savoy

Nothing quite takes the place of a spring coat. Long after warm weather has relegated the Easter suit to a garment bag, the coat will be useful to wear over silk frocks on cool summer evenings. And the market is so crowded with handsome models that almost any woman will find herself praying for many cool nights.

Take those new trim, tailored numbers, for instance. With their slim, form-fitting lines, they give a girl an air of smart sophistication. Fur and fussy details are used on dressmakers types but the tailored ones will have none of such distractions. They rely on utter simplicity for their charm and emphasize buttons (leather and wooden), necklines and fabrics.

You can go in for tweeds—nice, hard-finished ones that are as British as the proverbial fog over London—or suave herringbones or crinkly, rough woollens in solid colours. But whatever the fabric, look for the streamlined flare.

Your coat can emulate a slip-on dress, too, fitted snugly through the waistline, flaring slightly below the knees and having a perfectly plain neckline that can be worn buttoned high or turned back to show wild revers.

The coat (left in the sketch) is a perfect example of this streamlined chic. Of tan and black woollen mixture with four important pockets, notched lapels and four buttons, it is belted at the back and has a definite flare below the hips.

The navy blue woollen dress (right) carries out the high-waisted idea of the new sports clothes and is trimmed with four silver buttons.

DECORATING THE DINNER-TABLE

By Marigold Watney

What an agreeable piece of furniture is the dinner-table, and surely appreciated by all for its pleasant associations!

Even those envious people who are indifferent to the appeal of good food must recognise the dinner-table as a pleasant excuse for entertainment.

Ever since the beginning of history women have realised the importance of decorating their dinner-tables, but never have these decorations reached such a high standard as they do to-day. In the Middle Ages it was the fashion on festive occasions to have a huge erection of pastry and sugar in the middle of the table. Our modern wedding cake is a survival of this custom.

People became more frugal in Tudor and Jacobean days, and, instead of the magnificent cake of their ancestors, they decorated their tables with constructions of gaily painted cardboard. These "Warners and Subtleties," as they were called, had the advantage of being usable over and over again.

The Eighteenth Century brought about a welcome change in introducing charming china or porcelain ornaments—dainty shepherd and shepherdesses—but it was George IV, who first astounded society by putting flowers on the dinner table. From a contemporary writer we gather that this idea did not spring from any artistic ideas, but because he wanted to be shielded by "this jungle" from the eyes of his neighbours.

Spring Flowers.

"This jungle" of the past has improved and altered through the generations until to-day it has reached perfection. There is something infectious about the happiness of a table decorated with Spring flowers, and yellow is the keynote of Spring. Blacuit or cream table mats, with side-plates and goblets of amber glass, will harmonise with a big bowl of daffodils or golden crocuses in the middle of the table.

Orange, white or gandi mats look well, scalloped round the edges with a deep-green silk, with, in the centre, a flat pewter dish filled with snowdrops. Later on in the Spring, these mats will look equally attractive with an arrangement of almond blossom or forget-me-nots. For a cottage, patchwork table-mats are original. They are effective with a bowl of mixed flowers which harmonise with their own bright hues.

Very popular now are the hand-painted table mats, sandwiched between painted glass. Sometimes these are Victorian poses, or perhaps a hunting scene, or a dog, or a bird. Incidentally, a set of these mats makes a most acceptable wedding present.

A delightful novelty is a circular mirror with a groove round the edge. This groove holds enough water to keep fresh a slender garland of flowers which is charmingly reflected in the mirror.

CHAPTER XXII

Norma Field's health did not improve in the heat of Cuba. Estelle hovered near her mother, so anxious that at times she almost forgot Pablito. Even "Big" Field was gentle with his wife these days.

"We'll have you looked over again when we get to New York," he said. "And you, too," with a short nod toward Estelle. "I'm getting pretty tired of this 'disappointed in love' look of yours!" She did not answer. All she wanted was justice for one who knew to be innocent. But no one except her mother, who could do nothing, would listen to her.

One night at dinner when Mrs. Field had been too ill to appear Estelle braced herself and then spoke. "Father," she said, "do you think Pablito was drowned?" "I hope to God he was," he said harshly. Then he leaned forward, his small eyes narrowed. Shaking a thick forefinger at Estelle, he said: "Look here, young lady, I'm the one who chooses your friends! Do you understand that? And there'll be no white trash among them!"

"But I liked Pablito," Estelle said defiantly, "and I still like him. I know he didn't do what you think he did."

"Oh, my God!" Her heart pounding, the girl hurried to her mother's room as soon as the meal was over. But Norma Field was burning with fever and Estelle knew that she must not bother her.

Sir Aubrey and Billings, the detective, located the fat, dumpy little woman who had been slender Concepcion Villaverde y Blanco. She sat rocking in an ornate chair that had come all the way from New York, weeping as she told them how sweet the "white, white baby" had been. She had not spoken English for many years and her part of the conference was faltering. Billings sat twirling his hat nervously and, now and again, mopping his forehead. The day was cruelly hot. Even the brezza seared the skin. Sir Aubrey's cheeks had been turned to a royal purple.

"Then you gave the baby into the keeping of this Angela of Key West?" Billings prompted.

"Yes. He is still with her—a kind, good soul who has given him mother's care. We still reimburse her. Or rather, my respected father sends her the money. The boy is but 18 and still going to school, I imagine."

Sir Aubrey forgot the heat and at the same time forgot his distrust of airplanes. He would fly to Key West, he decided.

In the open he surveyed the street in the Vibora—rather shabby and English eyes, used to neat hedges and short-clipped green—and sighed deeply. He was near enough to the goal now to relax a little. Relaxing, he felt a nostalgia that had grown large under his tension.

There were goat in the streets and little brown babies, some of them wearing shirts, some without. Rank, coarse grass grew before the porches, high of pillar and of ceiling, before the one-storeyed, connecting houses to make a colonnade.

Heat and languor and noise and disorder, Sir Aubrey felt. A Chinese vegetable vendor padded down the centre of the street, carrying baskets heavily laden with greens on a pole strung across his shoulders. A labourer slept soundly in a little shade. The senor on the balconies surveyed the strangers with frank interest.

Sir Aubrey visioned the roseate future in which he saw himself taking the boy home to Lower Girtings. He saw the big hall filled with family portraits his wife and daughters drinking tea and eating strawberries on the lawn, the curate coming with some companion from the courts. Soon he would be taking guests to the stables; shooting; coming in, tired and satisfied, after a day that had given him a good bag. And the boy would be with him; his son.

Billings signalled a roving footman and they crawled in. It learned heavily as Sir Aubrey put his foot on the tin-foil step. They rode through Cerro on their way to Havana proper, passing a house in which there was a boy who was oddly pale beneath a heavy coat of tan that had clung through weeks of illness.

"The boy was saying earnestly, 'I've got to get something to do, Lottie. What do you think I can do?'"

Beau, in the same room, sagged back in his chair, lowered heavy eyelids. "You're goin' to work for me, Pablito," he said in a drawling tone. "I got some jobs for you."

"Beau, I can't do your kind of work."

"No, but you will."

"I won't."

Beau laughed sneeringly. "Look here, kid," he said slowly. "You're just about half a man now. I'll make a man of you—after I break you. But just what do you think you're worth now? I could knock you down with one hand and—"

But he did not knock Pablito down. A moment later Beau was prostrate on the tiled floor. Lottie, in a corner, pressed her hand to her lips, looking down at him. Pablito, shaking, stooped and laid his hand on Beau's gray silk shirt.

"It's still going—," he said. "Get some water, Lottie, and the Scotch."

She got them. Together they worked over Beau. "Beau, though, he could lick anybody," Lottie confided. "He was lightweight champion of the Bowery for a while."

Presently Beau opened his eyes languidly. He gulped down some of the Scotch, touched his chin experimentally and moistened his lips. Then he said weakly, "There's money for you in that business. I never met a meaner right. With a little training—"

He harped on this idea all the rest of the day. In the evening, as they dined in a cafe in Cerro, open on two sides to the street, Beau said: "In a few years you could lay up enough money to last the rest of your life. That is, you could if you could wallop 'em the way you walloped me. Oh, baby! I thought I'd met the Broadway Limited!"

Pablito was young enough to reply, "I hadn't begun—"

Beau grinned and all the sneering was wiped from his face.

"If you want money," he said, "that's the way to get it."

"I do want money," Pablito admitted. He more than wanted it; he had to have it. Money would help him find Noyes. They would go away together to some isolated country and that would take money, too.

"How could you fix it so that no one would know me?" he asked.

Beau smiled. "Kid," he said kindly, "if a lot of these guys are makin' money on you, don't you think they can rake up some ole hag who'll say 'she's raised you from a pup? Just knock out a couple brown brothers and you'll be safe as Gint's tomb.'"

"I didn't think these people liked anything but cock fighting," Pablito said then.

"We'll educate 'em."

Lottie, across the table, was studying Pablito closely. She agreed with Beau that Pablito, with training, could succeed as a boxer. But it would put him in the public eye and the women would begin to chase him. "It ain't no work for a gentleman," she objected harshly.

"Say, kid," Beau reminded her, "gentlemen ain't made outa murderers, see?"

Pablito set his glass down. He did not want Beau to see that his hand shook and Beau was watching him narrowly.

"Plenty of money," Beau was saying slowly. Trips to South America, and Paris, kid. Paris! And the right to tell anybody to go to hell. That's what money'd give you. How about it, kid?" he ended, softly and coaxingly.

"All right."

Still leaning across the table, Beau went on intently. "I get my rake-off, see? I'm your manager. Get that?"

"All right—," Beau sat back. "I'll scare up someone to train you. Then watch the fireworks!"

"What's Johnnie in Cuban?" "You mean little John?"

"That'd do."

"Juanito is little John."

"All right, Juanito. That's goin' to be your name. Drink to him, Lottie. May he go on with his killing!" Beau saw smiling, that this had "got" Pablito. It always did. He judged, did Beau, that he would get his rake-off and a good one.

SALE OF C.E.R.

IMPORTANT MEETING IN TOKYO

Tokyo, Apr. 13. In an effort to effect the sale of the Chinese Eastern Railway representatives of Japan, the Soviet and Manchukuo will meet at luncheon to-morrow.

The Japanese Foreign Minister, Mr. Koki Hirota will act as intermediary between the Soviet and Manchukuo.

It is believed in many quarters that there is now an excellent possibility of settling the issue.

It is emphasised that Mr. Hirota is anxious to effect the sale in order to improve the relations between Manchukuo and Russia.

The Soviet Ambassador, M. Yurenev, is reported to have drawn up estimates on a yen, instead of a rouble basis, for the purpose of avoiding a dispute over exchange.

The Tokyo Foreign Office has decided to ignore the Sirovich charges of secret war plans.

A spokesman stated to-day that the Government does not intend to dignify such propaganda by issuing a formal denial. He asserted that such propaganda was merely aimed at harming relations between the United States and Japan.—United Press.

BRITAIN AND JAPAN.

COMMERCIAL RELATIONS EXAMINED

London, Apr. 13. Further developments in the Anglo-Japanese textile deadlock are expected within a fortnight, in consequence of the progress made in the survey of the situation by the President of the Board of Trade (Mr. Runciman) and other members of the British Cabinet.

It is understood that Anglo-Japanese commercial relations, are being closely examined by the Board of Trade. This examination refers not only to textiles, but deals comprehensively with other industries.

It is understood that the complexity of the problem is increased by the consideration being given to the Dominions' aspect, for example, the heavy Japanese imports of wool from Australia.—

The Cigarette with
THE FILTER TIP

du MAURIER

Nicotine never stained fingers, and never caused a cough. Staining and coughing are caused by tobacco tar—hot, semi-solid, intensely irritant. You have only to see what it does to your fingers to know what it does to your throat. . . . The filter tip of a du Maurier traps tobacco tar. Nicotine—which has no colour—is carried through in the fragrant smoke. Smoke that is smoother for being unspoil—better for being clean.

Our Canton correspondent reports that the concert given by Ernesto Vallejo and Julio Esteban Anguita at the Canton Club Theatre on Thursday night was a great treat to the music-lovers of Canton, who seldom get a chance to hear really first-class music. There will be another concert on the 18th inst. in the Y.M.C.A.

MACAO EXPLOSION.

BIG FIRE CRACKER DEPOT BLOWS UP

Macao, Apr. 11. An explosion of more than ordinary violence took place shortly after noon to-day in Talpa Island, followed by a dense cloud of white smoke.

From information gathered from this island which lies across Praia Grande Bay, opposite Macao, the cause of the explosion was the blowing up of one of the explosive depots of one of the fire-cracker factories.

It is gratifying to be able to report that, although the ammunition shed blew up, no lives were lost.

This was due to the exceptionally careful precautions taken by the factory management and to the strict enforcement of the Government regulations for the safe-guarding of employees in these factories.

Whereas, at one time, every explosion caused the loss of many lives, the present case is an excellent commentary on the efficiency of the regulations governing the manufacture of fire crackers in Macao.—Our Own Correspondent.

SICK WOMAN IN PLANE

2,200 MILES IN TWO DAYS

With a very sick woman and her nurse as passengers, Mr. W. A. Baird, pilot of the Queensland aeroplane, Atlanta, flew in two days from Mt. Isa to Brisbane—a distance of 2,200 miles. Tribute was paid to the endurance of the nurse, says Austral News as no refreshment was taken on the journey. The Atlanta has figured in many aerial transport cases but this month it will have that side of the work supplemented by a new de Havilland Fox machine fitted with special stretcher accommodation.

Four cases of meningitis, two cases of small-pox and one case of typh were reported to the local health authorities on Thursday.

Sergeant Davis has notified the police that while driving his car along the Main Road, near Un Long district, a Chinese, carrying two buckets of water, stepped in front of the vehicle and was knocked down. The man was taken to the Kowloon Hospital suffering from injuries to his back.

Dual-automatic Refrigerators

Twelve years of painstaking research preceded the marketing of the new famous Westinghouse Dual-Automatic electric refrigerator. Westinghouse waited that long because it wanted to make sure that every detail in the refrigerator's construction was as perfect as human ingenuity and science could make it. . . . the pains of trial and error were not inflicted upon the buyer. . . . in its own extensive laboratories Westinghouse conducted its tests and gave to the public the most advanced refrigerator within the grasp of science.

Now, because in those same laboratories those same scientists have found new ways—WITHOUT ANY BASIC CHANGE—of giving you added beauty—affording you greater economy—increased ice-freezing capacity—at prices which set new standards of value—we are presenting the new MASTER SERIES dual-automatic Westinghouse refrigerators. Come in today . . . see these truly MASTER refrigerators.

JURY SERVICE

An incident which occurred on Thursday, at a death inquiry in Kowloon, suggests that there is something amiss with the system whereby jurors are selected for service at inquests. In the case under notice, all the jurymen were Chinese, and when European witnesses were called to give evidence, it became necessary to employ an interpreter to translate their statements into Chinese. The qualifications for jury service are laid down in the Ordinance in the following terms:—"Every male person between the ages of twenty-one and sixty years, being of sound mind and not afflicted with deafness, blindness, or other such infirmity, who is a good and sufficient person resident within the Colony, and is not ignorant of the English language, shall be qualified and liable to serve as a juror, subject to the exceptions hereinafter provided." From the fact that, owing to their ignorance of the English language, the jurors at Thursday's inquiry needed the services of an interpreter, it is obvious that they were not qualified to serve. The question then arises as to how their names ever came to be placed on the Jury List. Reference to the Ordinance shows that the Registrar of the Supreme Court is required every year to "make an alphabetical list of all persons ascertained by him to be liable to serve as jurors," and a copy of such list is posted for the term of a fortnight at the chief entrance to the Court. Provision is made whereby anyone may then apply for his name or that of some other person either to be added to or struck off from the list; and the Legislative Council is given power to add to or remove names therefrom. The precise method whereby the Registrar ascertains who is, and who is not, liable to serve, would appear to need some revision. Under existing conditions, it is quite possible that many who are liable for service escape their obligations, and we know from the case under notice that others who are unqualified are called up. Until some better system is evolved, the least that can be done is to ascertain, when jurymen are actually called, whether they are qualified from the language standpoint. As things are, it is to be feared that local panels often include jurymen who have only a mere smattering of English and are therefore quite unable to follow the proceedings intelligently. The result is to reduce the jury system to a mere mockery. Moreover, in criminal trials there can be no guarantee, in such circumstances, of verdicts fair either to the Crown or to the accused. Radical reform of the method of selecting jurors is obviously needed.

NOTES OF THE DAY

RUSSIA, U.S. AND GENEVA

No better demonstration of the very real need that is felt for an international organization for the League of Nations type could be afforded than the interest now being taken by Russia and the United States in the question of membership of the League. Their interest coincides with a period when Geneva is in the doldrums, when the sceptics talk of the certainty of its early demise, when it has suffered from the withdrawal of two great Powers, Japan and Germany, and from the refusal of Italy to take it seriously any longer. The fact is that world statesmen, as a whole, while finding it difficult always to secure harmony in Geneva's debates, are compelled to admit the value of the opportunity for international cooperation, and to accept the view that the disappearance of the League would leave a serious void in the machinery for international intercourse.

LEAGUE FUNCTIONS

Thinking men in America and Russia have reacted in the only intelligent manner. The existence of the League appears to be menaced by withdrawals. Can they discover good reasons why their countries should fill the gap? The real issue is not, of course, whether the entry of Russia and the United States is desirable. That is too obvious to warrant discussion. The real question to be answered is whether the League can fulfil the essential functions for which it was so hopefully established. Can the League be maintained as an effective director of international life? Can it influence the major problems of world politics and the preservation of peace? If the answer is in the affirmative, and it partially depends upon how much the United States and Soviet Russia are prepared to contribute to the League ideal, then not only is American and Russian membership desirable, but it is in their own interests that they should lend more fully to the support of Geneva.

MR. STIMSON'S POSITION

Two things immediately strike the observer on reading Mr. H. L. Stimson's eloquent appeal for the active participation of the United States by full membership. The first is in the nature of criticism. How is it, it might be asked, Mr. Stimson has only discovered his favourable arguments now, a year after an opposition Administration has taken over control at Washington. For four years he was Secretary of State and able powerfully to influence opinion, and did nothing. The second point arises out of the first to some extent. Mr. Stimson's advocacy may be regarded as indicative of growing opinion in the United States towards a change in her traditional policy. As an active member of the Republican opposition, as a party politician with one eye always on elections, it is doubtful if Mr. Stimson would appear so plainly in the open unless assured of a fairly wide measure of popular support.

NECESSITY OBVIOUS

The situation in this respect is thus encouraging, for more than ever may it be said that if the League of Nations did not exist, it would have to be invented. Unless civilisation is to declare itself bankrupt, there is no return to the old world diplomacy and intrigue, there must be a central organisation for the treatment of international problems and difficulties. Both Russia and the United States have co-operated in some of the most important negotiations of the League. In all fairness, they should take the further step of membership. It almost amounts to this, that if the League has any claim at all to influence in the preservation of peace, it is good insurance, from which the United States and the Soviet are prepared to benefit without contributing anything to the premiums. Unless, that is, the tendency towards closer alliance takes definite shape.

"NATIONAL SOVEREIGNTY"

There has been failure at Geneva because certain problems remain unsettled and arouse national passions. Yet no one who surveys the world to-day can doubt that those problems must be, and will be, settled. The League is handicapped because it is not an autonomous body, a sort of super-state—it is composed of those very nations which are most divided. Yet their divisions are incompatible with a peaceful and prosperous humanity. Sooner or later this will become crystal-clear to all countries. They will have to choose between their own destruction and their union in an organisation, that to be effective, demands a surrender of some measure of national sovereignty in so far as national sovereignty is opposed to universal welfare.

MR. PEPYS IN HONGKONG

Apr. 7th.—Up betimes this morning after a somewhat restless night, I being in great fear of wet weather for the Hockey game against Malaya. But I do find it a mighty fine and pleasant day for which I devoutly give thanks. Busy at my office and later I take my morning draught with Mr. Povey and Creed who seems mighty sure of our ability to win at Hockey. Later Mr. Povey discourses somewhat of this Kwang business, that it is but a storm in a tea-cup and I framed myself as pleasant as I could, but my mind was another way. After luncheon to Kowloon when I find the ground in very good order and on two sides stand the Indian troops and so do make a living force as it were. But I stand or sit upon the rising ground at the north end, and so do not pay their shot, yet see well-nigh as well as those that do. Which to my mind is a very great shame. But Lord! when it comes to the game all this is out of mind, for after they have scored early, our side hath at least as much of the game, save that when in the circle our forwards do seem to be as clumsy as elephants that essay fine needlework. But later when the Malaya side do score again they are all over us, and I am sad at heart that our men do play so far beneath their form. Yet, as I point out to Mr. Lord, who doth honour the match, the visitors' man for man are, as I suppose, three years younger all round. But it was a mighty fine game and I got much pleasure therefrom. Later to the Clubbe where I do eat a piece and then play at Contract with my usual ill-fortune. And I am minded to give up the game.

8th Lord's Day. This day I was fain to lie late but must needs be abroad early and to Kowloon where I see the troops and Kowloon at Krickett, and there Mr. Elvin bowls very well. But Lord! to see Mr. Muleygrub's keeping the wicket was a marvel, and I knew not it was his habit, he being as I had thought a cover. A mighty good nuncheon and after watching the game. Later after a glass or two of strong waters while we do argue upon the Rest team to Mr. Muleygrub's house where Mr. Winifred and I do dine, and afterwards at Contract against him and his Lady—and I for the first time in my life did make a grand slam bid when vulnerable. But Lord! at first when I did find that Mr. W. had bid me a forcing two upon a scant three honour tricks I was fit to die of apprehension. But later I make it, for which I don't think Mr. W. was mighty thankful. Home betimes and so to bed.

9th. Busy in my office and later at the Clubbe talking.

10th. This day I am very busy and in the evening I dine at the Hockey—Interport—dinner—where there are many pleasant speeches and much good fellowship. Home by midnight and so to bed.

11th. This day, I go a five of the clock to the Valley and there do see the Ladies playing at Hockey, and all very good too. But Lord! to see how gracefully some did run in their short kirtles, I did quite lose my heart to more than one of them. And I do judge that it was well that my wife, poor wretch, was not present, and I trust that she may not hear of it. After that she may tell me grim tales of the profession, and later home to the Clubbe where I fall to talking with Mr. Cartins in the Bar, and some others. And there I learn that the great American disclosure of a plot made by a learned professor turns out to be a statement that a lady did tell him at dinner that she had heard somebody else say, And Lord! what strange folk they be.

12th. This last night I did sleep very ill, partly I doubt not from the excellence of the lamb chops at dinner over-night in which, God forgive me, I believe I did indulge too heartily. Yet I was also sadly at a stonde to fall asleep in the early hours, so shrill be the yelling of the cats. But when later, over my morning draught, I do tell Mr. Povey that I had risen at three of the clock and had seen a many cats in the light of the electric standard gambolling beneath the trees upon the Krickett Ground, he tells me that I am most careless and remiss in my speech. For, says he, no good speaker or sportsman would say that he had seen "a many cats" but would say he had seen it courtship of cats, and so be justified as a man of accurate phrase. Later I dine heartily and to the Theatre where I do find a most excellent play, with pretty Mistress Fay at her best, though it likes me not she should play a middle-age part. And all the other parts most excellently done so that it would be ill to say which were the better. Round to the back after and drank a flaggon of ale with the actors and actresses and so home and to bed.

13th. Up betimes and a very fowle day to my greatest possible discontent, yet my business at my office was of such moment that I had no leisure to notice it until dark be fallen. Dined at the Hostelry and again to the play, and if possible did enjoy it even more. Drank a glass or two at the Clubbe and so to bed.

VOX ET PRAETEREA...

No more enlightened Britons of to-day Sing "Rule Britannia!" with a fervent passion. The times have changed, and we are apt to say That "patriotic dope" is out of fashion. Besides, the next great war seems far away. And we have other things to spend our cash on. We gaily scrap our ships, nor do we mind If other nations chose to lag behind.

We quite forget the lessons of the past. The days when we were glad of our defences, And though the skies to-day are overcast, And though the atmosphere a trifle less is, We hope to find a formula at last Designed to settle all our differences. And, with that laudable intent in view, We keep exploring every avenue.

But yet, amid the quaintly various host Of nations, as in conference we find them, Whose "yea" or "nay" is apt to count for most, Although, perchance, their pre-teritus is blind them, Plainly 'tis theirs who truthfully can boast That they have still the force of arms behind them, And once our peaceful seal has stripped us bare, For soul will carol TOUCHSTONE.

"Can we put down cosmetics as business expense?"

Despite the depression, we understand that this season's moth-bull trade promises to be as good as ever.

It is suggested that bachelors are not suitable tenants for flats. The objection is "doubtless to bar noises!"

Looks as if the cricket brokers should wait for the typhoon season. Their bowlers might then come off!

We notice that there has been some discussion in Shanghai on the question of "Blonde Beer." Doubtless to discover the amount of alcohol in the brew net!

Politicians are very conservative in their diet. Most of them are still to be found eating their own words.

Experiments are, we read, being made in running motor-cars on eucalyptus oil. Should do well for old buses with nasty, hacking coughs.

We hear of a compradore who has been fined three times for using faulty scales. Seems to be aspiring for the lightweight championship.

Somebody suggests that football clubs should make yearly donations to hospitals. It's evidently overlooked that some of them have already contributed a referee or two.

Why is it that black cats are always considered to be lucky, asks a reader. Probably because they are so hard to hit in the dark.

After years of research, scientists have discovered that the kind of hens that lay the longest are dead hens.

And Now It's the Cocktail Frock

A SWIRL COLLAR in beige fox sets off this suit of Martini green silk crepe. A pale green blouse goes under the jacket.

MARTINI GREEN crepe is used in the dress worn by the seated figure at the right of the big sketch. It has a V hip yoke and a wide round collar with a jabot frill. In the center of the big sketch is a girl wearing a dress in champagne-toned crepe. A fine pleated full of self fabric sets off the cowl collar and elbow-length sleeves.

NUBBLY wool crepe in Martini green is used in this tailored ensemble. The one-piece dress has a soft yoke of pale green silk. The fur is beige fox.

Whether you buy a suit or a dress, you'll find the new styles make use of many charming colors

SPRING'S newest creations—afternoon suits and dresses—take their colours from cocktails.

Whether you take tea or cocktails or neither, the new colour notes are sure to please. What woman can resist Martini green? It's a luscious shade which flatters blondes, brunettes and brown-haired girls alike. Don't say that you can't wear green until you've held a Martini green cocktail suit against your throat.

Champagne is another colour which is outstandingly good this spring. It is revived from time to time and its pale, pinkish-gold tones always are flattering. It's ideal for a girl who can't wear pure white but who likes palest pastels.

Lucky is the woman who invests in a dressy suit for the new suits and ensembles really are investments. You can wear them to all sorts of afternoon parties, smart luncheons, dinners in hotels and the like. They are clothes which will be suitable for general daytime wear and will accept the ten hour as just a pleasant interlude in the day's activities instead of as an occasion calling for special gala dressing.

As a reaction from the glittering and formal cocktail costumes the new clothes are tailored in line and finishing.

Suit jackets are pulled forward. It's modish to wear a perfectly plain skirt, flattering blouse and a jacket which fits smoothly across the back but is gathered under the belt in front. You may think that fullness in front will mar an otherwise flat line. But you'll know differently once you get into a dressy spring suit.

Ensembles, consisting of dresses and matching three-quarters or seven-eighths coats, are handsome. One grand ensemble in Martini green has a tailored dress with light green tulle vestee and a three-quarters coat which has fur-trimmed sleeves and a collarless neckline.

Fur trimming is lavishly used on spring suits and ensembles. You can have a soft fox collar, deep bands of fur around your sleeves at the elbows or a band around each cuff. White fox dyed in colours to match the fabric of your suit or dress is a 1934 innovation. Navy blue uses navy blue fur; pink frocks are trimmed with pink fur, and so on.

Hats to wear with these dressy afternoon things are off-the-face, for the most part. It's fashionable to let your hat show, not only all of your forehead but part of your hair in front too.

M. LEON DAUDET'S VITRIOLIC PEN

By MORRIS GILBERT.

The Constitution of the Third Republic, framed in 1875, provides a method of appealing to the people of France over the head of Parliament. The method is for the President with the express approval of the Senate to dissolve the Chamber of Deputies and call for a new general election.

It has only been employed once, and then improperly. That was when MacMahon was president in 1877 after fighting with the ministry of the day forced its resignation, appointed another ministry of his own, and then dissolved the Chamber.

The people of France immediately came back by electing just would have disapproved. USELESS PROCEDURE

The result of this imbroglio in 1877 has been to make practically useless the procedure of dissolution. No other president ever has tried it during all the years of the Third Republic.

So students of the machinery of government of the French republic assert that in practice if not in law the Chamber is elected for a full four years, and the electorate has no means of meddling.

But under the battering of the Stavisky scandal and the demonstrations of the politically unimportant royalist group, demand for revision of basic law and practice has become insistent. Except for extremist groups—the extreme right or Action Française crowd, and the Communists at the extreme left—the demand has not been to cast out the regime, but to reform it.

If the French regime were not a republican one, what could it be, people ask. A monarchy? The thought is fantastic. A communist state? Not so long as the greatest power in France—the peasantry—has anything to say. Hence, if there is to be some efficient way of cauterizing the wound inflicted by Stavisky on the French state, it is likely to be found in reform within the state as now instituted.

SOME QUERIES.

The French government has seldom been nearer chaos than today. The Stavisky case has raised a moral, as opposed to a political, issue, and the population gives every indication of extreme dissatisfaction with the government.

What would happen, people ask, if President Lebrun should grasp his legal right to dissolve the Chamber and call for an election?

What would happen if the Senate should withhold the "express approval" of such a step which is constitutionally required?

After all, the Senate is just as much a Radical Socialist group as the Chamber—and it is the Radical Socialist Party which is to-day under fire. It might hesitate to refuse to approve the President's act.

In that case—as was proved when President Millerand some years ago faced a ministry "on strike"—there would be no other alternative than resignation for President Lebrun.

If the president should resign, under such conditions, the election of a new president would be thrown as usual into the combined ballot of Chamber and Senate. But—presumably—there would be no dissolution.

In that case, what would popular feeling be? Popular feeling broke the late Chautemps government—with, as some people assert, the connivance of Prefect of Police Chiappe, who permitted the rioters to go to greater lengths than he might have done.

These are the terms of the crisis which France faces to-day.

PURE SPECULATION.

Granting the improbability that Frenchmen will have a chance to express themselves at the ballot again the answer is in the realm of pure speculation.

But it is felt in some authoritative quarters that the trend would be the same as has been seen in other countries faced in these times with political crisis: A swing from the moderate centre in both directions toward the extremes.

That is, a new election in France to-day would be likely to show both an increase for the conservatives and an increase for the Socialists, at the expense of the parties of the middle. From either wing, then, one might expect an effort toward "full powers"—dictatorial powers modelled on the many examples visible in nations surrounding France.

LEON DAUDET.

Meanwhile, the greatest political playboy of modern France—Leon Daudet—has been having the time of his life these last few weeks. He has been battering cabinets into a pulp, shouting for his King with a bull-throated roar, and laying about him on all sides with extremely impolite wit. box as a result of the Stavisky scandal. What would be the result?

THE CALL TO ACTION: the front page of "L'Action Française," . . . THE CALLER: Leon Daudet, its colourful editor . . . THE ANSWER: a riot staged by Paris Royalists.

Gaston Doumergue, who heads France's nervous new regime.

the same kind of a Chamber. Otherwise it is believed, there would have been a coup d'état—which MacMahon by no means Leon Daudet, son of Alphonse Daudet, is living proof that since in a while a great man has a great son. Robust, gargantuan, in appearance and in zest for good eating and drinking, Rabelaisian in the use of his pen, this great polemicist has one devotion, the House of Bourbon; and three hatreds, the Republic, Americans, and Prohibition.

Invited to America not many years ago, he brusquely declined, on the implied score that he didn't care much for Americans and couldn't possibly live in a country so barbarous as to deny the right to drink well and freely.

Now with the fall of Prohibition there are reports that Daudet might change his mind. He might do so, on that ground—but it is not likely that he will ever change his opinion of Americans, whose political doctrines in 1776, and thereafter played no small part in pushing over the monarchy whose chief champion Daudet remains to-day.

ROYALIST ORGAN.

Daudet's great mouthpiece is his newspaper "L'Action Française," which is the organ of what the philosophers of royalism describe as "Nationalisme Integral." Day by day for a score of years, this paper has been coming out, with, day by day, a blast of superb invective written by Leon Daudet.

Without great weight as a moulder of political action, in ordinary times, the Daudet daily column is the most brilliant, the funniest, in Paris. Its fun is never light, but always brutal. A club to batter the heads of politicians of the hated republican regime, to preach the superior morals and manners of a Bourbon king.

Daudet has another means of compelling a hearing: a body of hard-boiled, quick-hitting youngsters, dual floggings mostly, who are called the "Camelots du Roi" and who comprise a sort of Parisian Ku Klux Klan which has been trying to terrorize the city for years. Mostly its spleen is vented on innocent hucksters in the communist suburbs of Paris. Occasionally, as in the last few weeks, it strikes out in a big way at the government.

ADVENTUROUS LIFE.

Daudet's life has been a series of adventures. A dueler of note, he once defied the Paris police coming to arrest him and held them off from the offices of his paper (with the help of his trusty "Camelots") for several days. The cause of this curious adventure was the tragic death of Daudet's son Philippe, 14 years old, ten years ago. The boy, a precocious lad who looked older than his years, was also a run-away. He had been known to disappear for days at a time.

The last time he did so, his distressed family began to suspect foul play. The boy's body was found in a Paris hospital. He had been shot through the head. The police verdict was suicide.

Then began Daudet's most terrible onslaught on the authorities. He began by accusing the police of having "framed" the suicide for political reasons. He continued by accusing the police of having "planted" a letter on the youngster indicating that he had turned communist and was leaving his family on that account.

In view of the fact that at that time Daudet was engaged in a violent attack on the government, French people began to place considerable credence in the desolated father's tremendous accusations. The taxi-driver in whose cab Philippe's body had been found brought suit against the polemicist, and Daudet was sentenced to five months in jail. The scales of the Action Française came down on the authorities. At last one morning, Prefect of Police Chiappe himself appeared in the street below, and begged Daudet for the sake of keeping the peace. Daudet, with a pompous reference to the need to prevent "civil war" did so, and marched off to prison in triumph.

DAUDET'S RETURN.

But that triumph was nothing compared with the triumph of five days later, when a bewildered government suddenly discovered that Leon Daudet had escaped! The hoax was the best that had tickled the French people for a century. It had been managed by the Camelots, who by a clever use of telephones from the Ministry of the Interior to the prison, managed to convince the prison authorities that the government was releasing its celebrated captive.

Daudet spent two years in Brussels, close to his beloved kin, also in exile, and then was pardoned. He returned to Paris, acclaimed by thousands, and immediately took up again his slogging of the republican regime.

KOWLOON MUNICIPAL PROBLEMS DISCUSSED

BAND CONCERT QUESTION

NEW LIGHTING EXPERIMENT

COLLECTION OF REFUSE

Many matters of interest were discussed at the ordinary monthly meeting of the Kowloon Residents' Association, held in St. Andrew's Church Hall last Monday.

The following were present:—Mr. L. D'Almeida e Castro (President), Mr. H.F. Bunjo (Vice President), Mr. R.P. Phillips (Hon. Treasurer), Mr. C.M. Hall (Hon. Secretary), Messrs. F.C. Mow Fung, W. Goldenberg, R. Pestonji, H.F. Un, C.E. Terry, I. Murray, Lam Ming Fan, E. Kegn, Dr. R.A. de Castro Basto, Lt. Col. E.D. Mathews, Capt. R. Henderson and the Rev. E.L. Allen.

A communication addressed to the Colonial Secretary calling attention to the slow rate of progress in the preparation of the new site for the Central British School was read and approved, as was also a letter addressed to the Postmaster General in connection with the granting of licences for the sale of postage stamps in Kowloon and its Divisions.

DRAINAGE AND STREET WATERING

The subject of lack of drainage in the Homantin area was discussed and it was decided that a communication be forwarded to the Hon. Colonial Secretary, with a copy to the head of the Sanitary Department, calling attention to the large area affected by the absence of a flush system and requesting information if any remedy was contemplated and, if not, how Government proposed to deal with the matter.

A report from a sub-committee appointed to investigate the matter of watering of streets was submitted. It dealt exhaustively with the subject and it was decided that a letter be drafted and sent to Government outlining the Association's findings in the matter and strongly recommending that Government give this question its immediate consideration.

REFUSE DISPOSAL

Correspondence between the Sanitary Department and the Association dealing with the proposal by the Department to eliminate entirely the ringing of the refuse bell in certain quarters, was read. This decision was the outcome of numerous requests to the Department and, in adopting the new method, it was pointed out that this could only be accomplished by the co-operation on the part of occupiers of premises in the district.

The question of the unsatisfactory collection of refuse was also brought to the attention of the Committee. It was stated that trucks had been observed collecting refuse which had no covers in use; the original metal covers had apparently been removed, while the canvas covers on others were also missing.

The introduction of two experimental gaseous discharge lamps on Nathan and Waterloo Roads was brought to the attention of the Committee and the opinion was expressed that this type of illumination was eminently satisfactory. After discussion, the matter was left to a sub-committee for further experiment.

BAND CONCERTS

The President brought to the attention of the Committee a question of band concerts which the Government had supported by special grant in 1931.

It was the general opinion of the Committee, however, that, owing to the increase in the entertainment field during the past two or three years, these concerts would not receive the support of a sufficiently large portion of the public. The matter was accordingly left in abeyance.

REV. K. QUICK'S WEDDING

FORMER INTERPORT CRICKETER

A wedding of interest to Hongkong took place recently in Kowloon when Miss Doris Irene Barber was married to the Rev. Keith Quick, Headmaster of the Cathedral School, Shanghai, at All Saints' Church. The bridegroom is well-known in Hongkong, having represented the Colony in interport cricket. Guides and Brownies attended in uniform and formed a guard of honour; the Sisters of All Saints were present; a large number of Japanese friends, and many of the clergy of the diocese, Japanese and foreign, besides a large number of the Kowloon community. The Revs. G. N. Strong and E. Allen and Mr. A. E. Munro acted as ushers.

The bride entered the church on the arm of Captain Pegen, and walked up the aisle preceded by the choir, while the Rev. J. C. Ford (Chaplain of All Saints) played the Lohengrin wedding march. She wore a dress of ivory charmeuse, with lace sleeves and Medical collar, a full veil with orange blossoms and a pearl necklace, and carried a bouquet of lilies. She was attended by one small bridesmaid, Miss Joyce Phipps. Attending the bridegroom as best man was Mr. C. D. Wales.

The Right Rev. Bishop Basil officiated, assisted by the Rev. F. Kettlewell and S. Kakuzen. The reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Phipps.

Sister Dall, of the Government Civil Hospital, has reported to the police that while walking in High Street near the Sisters' Gardens last night, her handbag, containing $16, was snatched from her. The thief escaped.

BENCH & POLICE DIFFER

QUESTION OF WOMAN'S SENTENCE

Deported for a period of ten years for begging, a woman, Lam Yui, with a babe in arms, was charged before Mr. Macfadyen this morning with returning from banishment.

Det-Serjt. H. N. Moran said he himself arrested her six weeks ago. "Every time she is arrested she has a different child," he added. She was banished last month. The Magistrate imposed sentence of one month's hard labour.

Later, Inspector Vincent, in charge of Criminal Records, applied to his Worship to reconsider the penalty. Even a blind beggar usually received six or nine months. He had never heard of a sentence of one month for returning from banishment.

The Magistrate remarked that his personal view at the moment was that one had to consider what the person was banished for. There was a big difference between being banished for a number of larcenies and being banished for two small fines for begging.

Inspector Vincent pointed out that banishment was to keep people away from the Colony, and if they returned they should get a sentence which they would remember.

The Magistrate—I have not time to reconsider the sentence now. At the moment—I cannot decide. It is not a thing that can be decided at once. I am prepared to re-hear the case within seven days.

Falling from a retaining wall in Robinson Road yesterday, a school boy, Lau Pak-cho, of Jervois Street, received a fractured skull and was sent to the Government Civil Hospital in a serious condition.

PHILIPPINES & HONGKONG.

PROBLEM TO FOLLOW INDEPENDENCE

MR. LINEBARGER'S VIEWS

Declaring that both the flight of foreign capital from the Philippines in the near future, and the many-time uncertainty of Philippine independence, will have active effects upon Hongkong trade, Judge Paul Myron Linebarger, for nearly thirty years identified with the Sun Yat Sen revolutionary parties, one time Judge in the Philippines and now Legal Advisor of the National Government of China, who is now in Hongkong, stated his opinion yesterday that whether or not Philippine political changes would benefit or hurt British trade in the Far East would depend upon the immediate preparation to readjustments for such change.

"For over thirty years," explained Judge Linebarger, "the Philippines although a very minor country politically, has been a sort of a minute marker of Far Eastern trade, because of the interest which American capitalists and the American government took in its economic development. Moreover, the progress made there in that time has been greater than that of any other Far Eastern country. Take away this American push and enterprise and capital from the Far East and you have a vacuum left, which will require many gusty storms and winds to fill."

FLIGHT OF CAPITAL

"I myself believe," continued Judge Linebarger, "that the Philippines will maintain an admirably stable government. Yet it is apparent that foreign capital will not support a new government as it will an old and tried government. Where will this foreign capital of the Philippines go? Not to the homelands, for there is not as good an opportunity for trade investment in Western countries now as there is here in the Far East, even under the present disturbed conditions.

Here in Hongkong, I think that an accumulation of this left over Philippine foreign capital, will prove disadvantageous to you. The flight of such capital settling here in Hongkong would disturb, through competition, your present commercial and industrial organizations, which even as it is, with the best of management are not having an over-abundance of those good things called dividends.

CHINESE IN PHILIPPINES

"It seems to me" asserted Judge Linebarger, "that the only way that a serious condition can be overcome, is to encourage the small Chinese capitalists in the Philippines to take the place of the foreign enterprises which may decide to liquidate in those islands. In that way the vacuum of a political change, may be filled up with an intensive local economic activity, and not only Hongkong but all the Far East will benefit by Filipino generosity to Chinese capitalists, who already are the leading factor in Philippine economic life."

Judge Linebarger, who is on his way back to Washington, via certain European countries, "I can say nothing about my mission," he declared, "as my instructions from the Chinese National Council of State, are professional, confidential relations."

CRESIVAL

ST. JOSEPH'S PLAY BORDERERS WEDNESDAY WEEK

CHINESE TO TURN OUT STRONG TEAM FOR GOVERNOR'S CUP GAME TO-MORROW FIFTEEN PLAYERS SELECTED

(By "Veritas").

In selecting fifteen players from which to choose the final team for the Governor's Cup match to-morrow, the Chinese Amateur Athletic Federation have provided themselves with the richest Chinese talent in local football.

Their nominations include Ip Pak-wa, Lee Wai-tong and Fung King-cheung, who formed a part of the famous South China forward line of 1931, whilst three Chinese Athletic players have also been considered.

The actual composition of the team will not be known until to-day, but here are the 15 players from which it will be drawn.

Pau Ka-ping, Wong Wing, Li Tin-sang, Lau Mau, Tam Kong-pak, Lee Kwok-wai, Leung Wing-chui, Ip Pak-wa, Tay Qua-tong, Lee Wai-tong, Fung King-cheung, Tao Kwai-shing (South China), Ho Chor-yin, Lai Kwok-chiu and Ho Ka-keung (Chinese Athletic).

POSSIBLE TEAM

If Ip Pak-wa can get down from Canton, it seems fairly certain that he will play, and allowing for this, I imagine the Chinese team will be:

Pau Ka-ping;
Li Tin-sang
Lau Mau
Ho Chor-yin
Leung Wing-chui
Lee Kwok-wai
Tao Kwai-shing
Fung King-cheung
Ho Ka-keung
Lee Wai-tong
Ip Pak-wa.

In the event of Ip Pak-wa being unavailable, Tay Qua-tong will probably be brought in on the left wing. In any case, it will be very powerful team, especially the back, and Mullane, Gosano and Cord will have to be at their best to keep the score down.

STRANGE TO PLAY

For to-day's league match against the Borderers, the Club are enjoying the assistance of Sydney Strange despite his recent attack of malaria, and the team selected is a good one.

Baldwin has been sent up to the forward line again, and Gamble brought in to partner Strange at back. The team will be: Rodger, Gamble and Strange; Robertson, Pote-Hunt and Duncan; Fowler, Brown, Strange, Howe and Baldwin.

League And Cup Football Comparisons.

(By "Saracen").

Although cup football makes a wonderful appeal I doubt very much whether the public would be content to watch it all the time. Their enthusiasm is excited by the thrills of the death or glory contest, by all the circumstances which make it a case of now or never, but all the hurly burly would begin to pall and they would want the science and craft to be restored.

I do not think it is disputed that the best football must always be best no matter under what conditions it may be played. Yet as soon as a team approach a knockout match their ideas seem to change. To some extent I think this is due to sides from different League grades being pitted against each other. The one from the lower division in effect says "If we play these fellows in the normal way they are sure to beat us. They will be too clever for us." And so they search for means by which they may lessen the superiority of their opponents.

What they lack in craft and combined team work they try to make up for by keen endeavour and they resort to calculated means by which they can make the game different. "Get the ball into the air" they say. "That gives us a chance of getting it whereas if it is on the ground the cleverer men will probably beat us. Besides it gives us more time in which to make our tactics." So it goes and they race after it with exhilarating abandon. Fear is the dominating note of cup football. You must not lose a goal and no risks may be run. This thought even influences the play of the forwards and instead of trying to "make" goals in the usual way they rely on haphazard methods in the hope that while their own end may be safely held up a mistake will occur at the other and so enable them to score. It is not often that cup football produces clear cut goals which are obtained by clever maneuvering. They are the result of the little accidents which are always liable to occur, the human errors which can never be kept out of the game, and so half backs and forwards gamble on these to give them their reward.

This style may serve as a variation from the ordinary, but as I have said I am convinced that spectators would quickly tire of it and instead of all the hurly and bustle demand more skillful ball play on the ground.

In Championship Soccer Game

A CLEARLY MARKED TRAIL TO GOAL

The above was taken during the Police v. Tung Hwa match in Shanghai last week when Kiu shot the opening goal for the Chinese. The trial of the ball, is clearly marked by the attitude of the defenders as they attempted, but failed to stop the point. The match was cancelled by the referee when the score stood at 1-1.

Girl Student Creates New National Record.

The finals of the flat races of the City Sports Meet in Canton were held on Wednesday at the East Parade Grounds. The outstanding performance of the day was registered by Miss Lam Shin-kung, a student of the Athletic College, when she broke the national record for the baseball throw with a heave of 43 metres.

The grand drill, in which 1,000 students and 1,080 by scouts participated, was also conducted. Following the close of the track events, a friendly soccer match was played between the teams from the British Gunboat H.M.S. Falmouth and the City Police. The latter won by a score of six goals to one.

RE-ARRANGED LEAGUE GAMES

ST. JOSEPH'S TO MEET BORDERERS WEDNESDAY WEEK.

The necessity of playing off mid-week matches in order to conclude the first division programme before May 5 which has been set aside for the Champions v. Rest game, has been realised by the Football Association, and in view of the apathy of the clubs in mutually arranging such fixtures, the following tentative dates have been made by Mr. G. T. May, F.A. Secretary.

Wednesday, April 18 Borderers v. Navy

Wednesday, April 18 Police v. St. Joseph's

Wednesday, April 25 St. Joseph's v. Borderers

Yesterday the Chinese Athletic Association announced that as six of their players were going to Canton they could not raise a team to meet the Navy this afternoon. It is understood the Navy are claiming the points.

TENNIS LEAGUE ENTRIES

SEVERAL STILL TO COME IN

TWO TEAMS IN M.D. DROP OUT

Although entries for the tennis league officially closed yesterday, clubs showed a reluctance to send in their applications, with the result that to date only about half of last season's teams have been put in.

One or two teams have also dropped out, these including the H.K.C.C. from the "C" Division, Filipino Club, and the Civil Service (from the "B" Division).

Up to yesterday evening, the following entries had been received.

"A" DIVISION

Chinese Recreation Club, Craigengower Cricket Club, Hongkong Cricket Club, South China Athletic Association, Indian Recreation Club, Kowloon Cricket Club and Club de Recreio.

"B" DIVISION

Chinese Recreation Club, Hongkong Cricket Club, Indian Recreation Club, South China Athletic Association, University Club de Recreio, Kowloon Cricket Club.

"C" DIVISION

Chinese Recreation Club, Army Tennis Club, Kowloon Bowling Green Club, Kowloon Dock Recreation Club, Civil Service Cricket Club, Craigengower Cricket Club, Central British Association, South China Athletic Association, Kowloon Indian Tennis Club, Kowloon Dock Recreation Club, Indian Recreation Club, University Club de Recreio and Kowloon Cricket Club.

ENTRIES NEEDED FORTHWITH! No information has yet been received from the Deutsche Club, United Services Recreation Club, Police Recreation Club, and Graduates Association, all of whom took part last year.

These, together with any new clubs wishing to participate in the league, should send in their entries to the Secretary forthwith, as the league will be constituted on Friday next.

It is understood that the Radio Sports Club are contemplating again entering in the "C" Division, providing the usual permission to play home matches on opponents' courts is granted.

In the mixed doubles, the Recreio and Indian Recreation Club have dropped out this year, and at the present only the Chinese Recreation Club, Ladies Recreation Club and Kowloon Cricket Club have intimated their intention of competing.

MANCHUKUO & OLYMPICS

BITTER OPPOSITION BY PHILIPPINE CHINESE

WILL BOYCOTT COUNTRYMEN IF THEY PARTICIPATE

"China is not injecting politics into the Far Eastern Games in its refusal to recognize the right of Manchukuo to join the Far Eastern Meet here next month. Manchukuo is not a recognized state. It is a part of China and if Manchukuo participates in the games, then she must do so under the banner of China, under which flag she always participated. China is only defending the integrity of the Far Eastern Sports Association and the Far Eastern Games, by refusing to admit a non-existing and unrecognized state to become a part of the 'Games'."

The above was expressed to the Manila Bulletin by Mr. Alfonso Symp, President of the Chinese Chamber of Commerce here in the city, when he was questioned on the supposed political motive of China in not recognizing the right of Manchukuo to enter the Far Eastern Games here in Manila next month.

Mr. Symp further stated, "If Manchukuo, by some reason or other is admitted into the Games, then China will be justified in withdrawing from the Meet, as she will be entirely within her own rights and furthermore, upholding the constitution of the Far Eastern Sports Association, for by its ruling, the unanimous consent of all the members of the Far Eastern Association on the entry of any non-member into the association must be obtained."

The national dignity of China will not permit her to see her own right disregarded; but if Japan withdraws from the games because Manchukuo will not be allowed to participate, then Japan will not be acting in a very sportmanlike manner, as she will then be violating the constitution of the association which she herself was instrumental in drafting."

DETERMINED STAND

It was also learned that the local Chinese community has taken a rather determined stand against the entry of Manchukuo in the games. A general meeting was held last Saturday, when approximately 33 local Chinese trade organizations and newspapers met to discuss just what would take place here and what the local Chinese reaction would be in case Manchukuo does participate in the Games.

As a result of the meeting, cables were sent to various civic organizations, newspapers and other influential bodies in China, requesting them to do their utmost to get Dr. C. T. Wang, chairman of the China National Amateur Athletic Federation, not to swerve from his original intention to keep Manchukuo out of the Far Eastern Games. Furthermore that he should not be influenced by the Japanese envoys at the conference in Shanghai was urged.

The cables also advised that as a last resort in case Manchukuo is admitted, the present Chinese government should strongly advise Chinese athletes against sailing for the Philippines to enter into the games, as such athletes coming from China will receive no hospitality here from the Chinese community in Manila and that they will not be regarded as true sons of China.

The individual cable to Dr. Wang was a strong reiteration of the local Chinese opinion against the further discussion of Manchukuo in the open parley of the Far Eastern Sports Association which is now in the process of being called to order in Shanghai.

It was later revealed that the local Chinese Chamber of Commerce was in receipt of a cable response to their entreaties which informed them that under no conditions will Manchukuo be tolerated by China in the discussion at the conference.

SIR MALCOLM CAMPELL TO ATTEMPT 300 M.P.H.

SIR MALCOLM CAMPELL'S BLUEBIRD II.

IN BLUEBIRD II

IN ATTACK ON RECORD

AUGUST NEXT

Sir Malcolm Campbell, the British driver who seeks an automobile speed record of 300 miles per hour as his ultimate goal, will drive his five-ton Bluebird racer over the Salsdore Lake bed, near Salt Lake City, Utah, in August in an attempt to smash the mark of 272.108 miles an hour which he now holds. Sir Malcolm raised the record for the fourth time at Daytona Beach, Florida, last February.

The Salsdore Lake bed, presenting a smooth course of several miles, offers an unusual opportunity for increasing the record. The surface is a deposit of hard packed natural mineral salts, and provides distance both for getting up speed before the start and for slowing down after completion of the measured mile, as well as additional safety factors. The giant Bluebird, by design, is capable of a technical speed of 300 miles an hour. During last year's run on the beach at Daytona, Sir Malcolm was unable to keep the throttle wide open, due to the condition of the course, even when he set the high mark of a fraction over 272 miles an hour. He set his first world record with Bluebird I at Daytona beach in 1928, when he lifted the mark for the measured mile to 206.956 m.p.h. Major Scraggs raised the record to 231, but Sir Malcolm returned to Daytona in 1931 and regained the record with an average of 245.733 m.p.h. with a new car, Bluebird II. He was knighted by King George upon his return to London.

Still not satisfied, and determined to drive 300 miles an hour, Sir Malcolm went back to Florida in 1932 and raised the record to 258.908 m.p.h. He also set corresponding marks for five kilometres, five miles, and ten kilometres. On the same course in February last year, he set the record above 272 miles an hour.

WHAT IS TRUTH?

THURSDAY'S LECTURE AT THE MANUK LODGE

The chair was taken by Mr. W. C. Felslow at Thursday's public meeting of the Manuk Lodge of the Theosophical Society, when Mr. G. W. May delivered a lecture entitled "What is Truth?"

The question, said the speaker, had been asked time after time throughout the ages, by a great variety of humanity, engaged in the ceaseless struggle for existence. The sciences are asked for replies to our questions. We appeal to our emotions and to our faculties, especially to the faculty of reason. But though we may not always be able to find it, the truth is everywhere pressing to the surface.

We look to our Governments to control and order our national affairs, but behind the Governments of individual countries the League of Nations stands for a more international brotherhood. Civilization in modern times depends on organized communication between nation and nation, in Economic, Political and Scientific and Artistic realms. The League of Nations is the best example of this international co-operation. The old theory was that arms for defence of state against state were a necessity. Now what is needed is a more international outlook of mind on the part of all nations, and here we have the underlying truth of Universal brotherhood gradually coming into its own.

Modern inventions are all based on theoretical research. The theories of science precede practical discoveries, and their successes in solving problems based on man's physical needs have brought the respect of the public to the exact sciences. The vaguer results of biology and psychology have led to more tardy recognition of them but it is now realized that they are as necessary to social and educational experiments as are chemistry and mathematics to medicine and bridge-building.

So we go on with the search from problem to problem. We see in the world around us forms which come and go, and realize that there can be no cause without effect or effect without cause. For through all and behind all there is a great Power acting, the Truth for which we are all seeking. This Truth has no past or future. It knows not time, its existence is absolute. The Great Ones such as Christ and Buddha knew this. Truth, some great men have caught glimpses of it, every human soul has this Power in its inmost being.

One living now who has realized this Truth, went on the speaker, is the teacher Krishnamurti who tells us that there is no short cut to the Truth, but that to live in the Eternal values is the nearest way to its realization. And so, he concluded, we cannot say what Truth is. We are only students and seekers. But there is beauty in the search.

TIGHTENING UP OPIUM ORDINANCE

DRAFT OF LATEST AMENDMENT

The Gazette contains the draft of an Ordinance to amend the law relating to opium.

It is explained that section 3 of the Opium Amendment Ordinance, 1933, amended section 15 of the principal Ordinance by "bringing within the scope of the section owners, occupiers and managers of premises who knowingly suffer them to be used as dens."

In a recent case the Full Court decided that the tenant of a floor of a Chinese tenement house who had sublet a portion of that floor was not an occupier of the portion so sublet within the meaning of the amended section.

LESSONS INCLUDED

The present amendment substitutes for section 15 of the principal Ordinance, an amended section on the lines of section 13 of the Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1885, re-enacting in different terms the provisions of old section 15 relating to persons who smoke in, keep or occupy an opium den, and, in new paragraph 1 (d) extending those provisions to include a lessor or landlord who knowingly lets, or having let willfully consents to the use of, his holding or any part thereof for the purposes of an opium den.

Sub-section (2) of new section 15 indicates the scope of the terms "lessee," "tenant," "lessor," and "landlord" used in the section, Found lying in the roadway at the junction of Ma Tau Chung Road and Tam Kwong Street, Kowloon City, a coolie was taken to the Kowloon Hospital last night by Mr. Charlton, of the Government Marine Surveyors' Office.

The man regained consciousness later and stated that he was knocked down by a motor vehicle which did not stop.

The Gazette contains regulations with regard to prosecutions for offences against the Merchandise Marks Ordinance.

and the steps which a lessor or landlord who becomes aware that the premises let by him are used as an opium den should take in order to discharge the liability imposed on him by sub-section (1).

CHINA'S FUTURE POLICY

CANTON MAY BE CONSULTED

THE NANCHANG CONFERENCE

(Special to "Telegraph")

Shanghai, April 14.

Although very little has leaked out regarding the "triumvirate" Conference "behind closed doors" at Nanchang, it is learned, in official quarters, that a "definite decision" has been reached on future policies in handling the political problems of North China, as a result of a close examination of the situation.

However, according to a certain high official of the Nanking Government, in view of the importance of the decisions of the conference, Mr. Wang Ching-wei, President of the Executive Yuan, will consult the opinion of the Canton authorities before finality is reached.

The general impression prevails in Nanking official circles that, judging from the attitude of Mr. Wang Ching-wei, whatever may be the results of the Nanchang Conference, China's future policy will not lead to the restoration of postal and railway communication with the Puppet State, because this virtually means according recognition to it.

Besides the North China problem, Mr. Wang Ching-wei is said to be also discussing with Chiang Kai-shek the financial problem and the method of inviting foreign financial assistance in the economic development of China.—Central News.
